The Chains Come out for the CAB

Epsom and Ewell's leading citizens turned out last Saturday (12th September) to help raise much needed funds for the charity Epsom and Ewell Citizens Advice Bureau. The Mayor Councillor Jan Mason and her Consort Alan were joined by the Deputy Mayor and Mayoress Councillor Alan Winkworth and his wife Vanessa collecting in Epsom Town Centre.

Passers by were surprised and delighted to see the Borough's chains being worn by all four keen collectors, and they dug deep into their pockets to ensure that, in total, a sum of over £700 was raised by the collection.

Collectors included Chris Grayling MP, CAB staff and volunteers, local councillors and other supporters, with collections taking place at Homebase in Ewell and the Rainbow Centre as well as Epsom High Street.

Councillor Eber Kington, chairman of the CAB fundraising committee said:

“At this time of recession and economic hardship the call on the CAB's free and confidential advice is greater than ever. The number of people CAB is advising with employment worries, debt and strains on family relations is increasing and we really appreciate every contribution that is made to our work.”
